State House in 1871. Drawn & published by A. Ruger. Library of Congress, Geography and Map Division.

Arkansas's first state capitol, the Old State House was completed in 1840. By 1890, the building was showing her age and legislators began to question whether or not to make extensive repairs and additions to the Old State House. Two major factors led to the decision to build. First, a sizable portion of the state debt was paid off. Second, during the 1899 session, the plaster ceiling in the Senate fell onto legislators sitting at their desk.

The new Capitol would be built on 40 acres on what was then the very western edge of Little Rock on a site that housed the state penitentiary. It took 16 years, from 1899 to 1915 before the Capitol was completed.
